The first system of musical notation consists of a 3x8 grid. Above the grid, there are four brown shapes: a circle, an oval, and two vertical ovals, all underlined. The notation uses colored rectangles and arrows to represent notes and rests. The top row contains yellow rectangles with upward-pointing arrows. The middle row contains blue rectangles with upward-pointing arrows. The bottom row contains brown rectangles. The notation is organized into eight measures, with various colored shapes (yellow, blue, brown, black, green, grey) placed within the grid cells to represent the melody and accompaniment.

The second system of musical notation consists of a 3x8 grid, identical in structure to the first system. It features the same four brown shapes underlined above the grid. The notation uses colored rectangles and arrows to represent notes and rests. The top row contains yellow rectangles with upward-pointing arrows. The middle row contains blue rectangles with upward-pointing arrows. The bottom row contains brown rectangles. The notation is organized into eight measures, with various colored shapes (yellow, blue, brown, black, green, grey) placed within the grid cells to represent the melody and accompaniment.
