

Song of the Crib Melody

Piano

Song of the Crib Melody

Piano

The image displays three systems of musical notation for the 'Song of the Crib Melody' on a piano. Each system consists of three staves. The notation uses colored circles (black, blue, grey, brown, red) and horizontal bars to represent notes and rests. An arrow points to the second black circle in the first system.

System 1: The first staff has a black circle on the first line, a black circle on the second line with an arrow pointing to it, and a black circle on the second line. The second staff has a black circle on the first line, a blue circle on the second line, a grey circle on the second line, and a blue circle on the second line. The third staff has a red circle on the first line, a brown circle on the second line, a grey circle on the second line, and a grey circle on the second line.

System 2: The first staff has a brown circle on the first line, a brown circle on the second line, and a red circle on the second line. The second staff has a black circle on the first line, a black circle on the second line, and a grey circle on the second line. The third staff has a black circle on the first line, a black circle on the second line, and a grey circle on the second line.

System 3: The first staff has a red circle on the first line, a brown circle on the second line, a grey circle on the second line, and a black circle on the second line. The second staff has a blue circle on the first line, a blue bar on the first line, a grey circle on the second line, a brown circle on the second line, and a grey circle on the second line. The third staff has a red circle on the first line, a red bar on the first line, a red circle on the second line, and a red bar on the second line.