

Unto us a child is born / Puer nobis Bass line

Piano

The image displays two rows of rhythmic notation for a bass line, each consisting of five measures. The notation uses colored blocks and 'X' marks to represent notes and rests. The first row starts with a red block in the first measure, followed by a red block in the second measure, a red block in the third measure, a red block in the fourth measure, and a red block in the fifth measure. The second row starts with a blue 'X' in the first measure, followed by a red block in the second measure, a black 'X' in the third measure, a yellow 'X' in the fourth measure, and a red block in the fifth measure. The third row starts with a red block in the first measure, followed by a red block in the second measure, a blue block in the third measure, a red block in the fourth measure, and a red block in the fifth measure. The fourth row starts with a yellow 'X' in the first measure, followed by a grey 'X' in the second measure, a black 'X' in the third measure, a black 'X' in the fourth measure, and a red block in the fifth measure.